Agency May Be Worst Enemy Of Abused Children

Star Staff Writers

An abused or neglected child's worst enemy may be the very state agency that's supposed to protect him.

Caseworkers in the two-year-old Lancaster County Child Protective Service (CPS) unit say their work is the victim of a monstrous, uncontrollable bureaucracy of the State Welfare Department, built on an inflexible mountain of incomprehensible paperwork.

Rather than being able to respond to each family's needs, caseworkers say, rigid rules often promote breakdown of their relationships with clients, serve up the wrong kinds of help, or cut off some families when they need help most.

"The whole program seems to be designed not to meet the needs of the client, but to fit into the system," said Ms. A. She requested anonymity, saying administrators threatened CPS employes jobs if they complained publicly.

"We have talked with the state, regional, county and local administrators" about the problems, Ms. A said, "but they just think we're out of touch with reality, that we're too involved with our clients."

"We recognize the problems," which are "long-standing," said State Social Services Director Larry Nedrow. Regional repesentative Alan Little agreed, but cautioned that caseworkers should hold a partly detached view of the total client program in order to have realistic goals.

Nedrow frankly admitted "we don't know" if the CPS goal is abuse and neglect prevention or crisis intervention. "We're trying to redefine" goals and procedures, he said and "hope to make a final decision on what our role is to be" by January.

That includes revising the Welfare Department's Social Services Division comprehensive manual — a three-inch-thick, five-pound, bureaucratic bonanza. It dictates almost every imaginable task: paperwork routing, agency goals, case methods, how to talk on the phone.

Restrictions, Limitations

Ms. A indicated county and regional welfare officials' "goby-the-book attitude places irritating restrictions on caseworkers, as well as unrealistic limitations on CPS services.

For example, Ms. A said a case manager may open a case and design a service plan, but before the caseworker can deviate to meet a family's needs better, it requires the manager's permission and attention again. Ms. A explained that the time it takes to build trust and a working relationship with a family can be easily fractured when more than one person handles the case.

"We're well aware" of such concerns, Nedrow said. Some administrative changes were made last July to beef up CPS services, and while effects are emerging, it's "tremendously hard to shift priorities in any agency.'

Nedrow said, "Things are very slow, and we apologize for that." Citing a department "commitment" to streamlining, he stressed his confidence in caseworkers who are "on the firing line." He lauded "their utmost" efforts to help families. But the CPS problem statewide, Nedrow said, is insufficient money and staff expertise. And because of new federal restrictions on the agency, everyone can't be served.

Thus, he said, "we believe our role might be changing to one of massive coordination," easing caseworkers' jobs by referring families and children to agencies that can provide needed services or treatment.

Treatment Vs. Protection

"The basic problem" now, Nedrow said, is defining the department's responsibility as complete treatment or simply protection in crisis situations. "We're trying to provide a greater focus on protective service than we've ever had

Ms. A said each case must be closed after six months unless a court orders continued service or Little approves an extension. They're "indiscriminately" denied, CPS workers complain. "Probably 99%" are denied Little noted.

He explained effective case management would remove family pressures and frustrations, and CPS work reflects only "a portion of the total time that will be spent" to help

Ms. A also said of two identical extension requests, one typically will be denied, the other okayed.

'There is a little inconsistency," Little admitted, saving he "really can't justify" it, except that crises take precedence. And crises usually shouldn't last six months, Nedrow said.

Yet, Little said. "I don't particularly agree" with crisis service as a limit. Prevention "is a very vital part of our total program, even though it's not being recognized in policy at this

No Limits On Family Apart

Ironically, a caseworker can serve indefinitely a family whose child is in foster care, but only six months for the family that may keep an abused child. Thus, "there are limitations on working to keep a family together, but there are no limitations on keeping a family disunited," Ms. A said.

A police officer who initially investigates abuse/neglect cases agreed with Ms. A. Caseworkers who know clients should make service extension decisions, not "some yo-yo in the administrative office." the officer said. "That's ridiculous.

'What you're saying is that protective service is like every other case we have. It is not."

Ms. A pointed out that case managers do extend and handle cases administratively, although policy forbids them from direct casework. Ms. A suggested such violations are common.

Because the CPS unit is understaffed, Ms. A said some cases aren't given warranted attention because others present more critical situations. And other cases which should be opened are simply filed away. In the past 21/2 years, initially ignored cases revealed worse abuse and neglect in later police reports, said the officer who refers about 10 weekly to CPS.

"The case loads are so high that they are totally out of control," Ms. A said, and not all cases are reported. Nedrow acknowledged caseworkers are illegally going beyond their duties, but he and Little cautioned against their omniscience.

One state agency must "play a leadership role" for CPS and Nedrow said his department is trying. If the revamping fails, he said he'll support creating a separate state department of children and youth.

Before going to the East-West Center, Ford stopped at the sunken hulk of the battleship Arizona at Pearl Harbor, a tomb for some 1.-200 Navy men, and predicted that the next generation will "see peace come true."

Because he woke up Sunday on the other side of the international dateline, Ford earlier in the day was able to lay a wreath at the site of yet another World War II defeat, the island of Corregidor near Manila, where Americans and Filipinos made a last-ditch stand against invading Japanese in 1942.

Crete - It's an experiment in which those who gain, lose. And those who lose will gain.

And if that sounds far-outish, consider further that it appears arch-rivals Doane College and Nebraska Wesleyan University both will be coming out to the good.

If there is to be pity, at least for now let it be toward Dr. James Allison, the Doane professor who contrived the unusual project. Because he ate the who-o-ole thing over Thanksgiving, he may be in the ho-o-ole $25.

The five-week experiment, the off shoot of a 49-member class in behavioral psychology, was to test the effect on would-be weight losers of "punishment through threat." As the professor put it, "it's sort of like your mother saying you can't go to the party if you don't do your home work."

Checks Written

Eighteen volunteers, pledging to trim off five to 10 pounds each, put up $5 per pound and then disignated a "thoroughly undesirable cause" as the potential beneficiary. As reinforcement, checks were written and ordered held.

"The class had little trouble agreeing that the worst possible cause would be Wesleyan's athletic scholarship fund," explained Dr. Allison. "Especially since some W's were burnt into our football field this fall, there's nobody the kids would like less to write checks to."

With the official weigh-in scheduled Wednesday, it appears NWU will actually receive only a small fraction of the $435 placed in escrow. As psychologically anticipated, the penalty was just too overpowering.

Apparently the most motivated - at least he's "melted off the mostest" - was football player Jim Matese of Chicago Heights, Ill. He was off 13 pounds, three beyond his goal, a full week before the experiment's finish.

No Total Told

A confident Michele Skala was also within easy reach of snatching back her fat fifty. The Crete coed talked as easily about the two pounds to go as the eight already gone — but would say "absolutely nothing" about the scale total.

Things do look bad for one "victim in reverse." long and leanish Tim Kemper of Clay Center. Putting up $35 on the prospect of putting on seven pounds, he remains at his original 150 after eating everything in sight.

And Allison, with $25 at stake, has done nothing to his 156 pounds but solidify them on a 5-4 frame. Another psychologist might have an explanation for his jesting rationale:

"I'm really not heavy for my height. It's just that I'm too short for what I weigh.'

LONDON (AP) - Four Irish Republican Army gunmen held a 54-year-old postal inspector and his wife hostage in an apartment Sunday demanding a flight to Ireland. Police, with orders to shoot, said no deals would be made with the gunmen. They sealed off the apartment in a four-story building near Regent Park in central London and evacuated the surrounding area.

missioner, Peter Walton, said Britain's most wanted man, Michael Wilson, was believed to be one of the four gunmen in the apartment. McWhirter, gunned down on his doorstep Nov. 27, had offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of terrorists. Police said the hostages — John Henry Matthews and his 53-year-old wife Sheila had not been harmed, but the gang did threaten to harm them if police stormed the apartment.

"Our contigency plan is to talk as long as possible." a police spokesman said. Metropolitan Police Commissioner Sir Robert Mark declared: "We are certainly not going to give way in any way at all.'

The siege began Saturday night after the self-proclaimed IRA gunmen fired two shots at an expensive restaurant already bombed by militants and sped away in a stolen car.

Police said the gunmen abandoned the car after exchanging shots with police during a high speed chase through central London and then burst into the second-story apartment to take the hostages. Cmdr. William Fleming, the senior uniformed police officer at the scene, told newsmen: "The only maneuver is that they will come out with their hands up. The negotiations will be conducted on our terms." Fleming said only a locked door separated the police from the gunmen and their hostages. He said police have the apartment sealed off and that officers "are on the ground floor, in the flat above the gunmen, and also on the stairs.

Police marksmen kept watch on the apartment as Fleming spoke. He said the snipers were "authorized to shoot."

Whenever a policeman went in or out of the yellow-brick building three uniformed policemen wearing olive-drab flak jackets stood in the street and trained their service revolvers on the windows of the besieged apartment.

Police cordoned off the area about 120 yards in every direction and an armored car, white police landrovers and ambulances stood by.

Damage Claims Filed Against City Several Times Each Month

By LYNN ZERSCHLING Star Staff Writer

Lena Ladner, Rodney Eirick and Theresea Whittman probably don't know it, but they have something in common.

All three had run-ins with a city street sweeper. Well, let's say, the sweeper got a little too close to them and they all decided to do something about it.

They each filed a claim with the city asking for damages incurred when their cars were struck by the sweepers.

Then there's the case of LeRoy Higer and Edward Camp, They seem to have trouble with pesky tree branches.

Higer claims a tree hmb which had allegedly been tagged by the city for removal, fell on his truck. Camp contends that a tree branch, being trimmed by a parks department worker, fell on his chain link fence. They both filed claims.

Every month citizens file claims for damages with the city wanting money to repair damages they think the city has caused.

5-12 Monthly Not counting the accidents involving city vehicles and buses, between five and 12 claims are filed each month, according to Asst. City Atty. Jim

During October, ten general hability claims were filed against the city. Eight more were filed in November. Some have been paid. Others already have been denied. The rest are being investigated.

For instance, in the case of the runaway street sweepers, the city paid up in two of the three cases.

Mrs. Ladner was paid $461, while Eirick received $334. The city and its insurance company still are looking into Ms. Whittman's claim.

Limb Claim Rejected The city rejected the falling-treelimb claim made by Camp on the grounds that the fence was repaired by the parks department. The other claim is being studied.

During the last two months, peoples' claims ranged from the expected to the bizarre

A woman fell on a sidewalk and fractured her wrist Claim denied. Another woman wants to be paid for damages incurred after she hit a pile of dirt, causing her car to collide with another vehicle. The city still is looking into that one

Then there's the case of John Kroon who's blaming the city for his dirty laundry. The city is checking into Kroon's claim that "various items" were ruined in his washing machine when the sewer backed up.

Trench Claim Denied Another man is contending that the Lincoln Electric System goofed while filling in and packing a trench. His walls and basement were damaged, he said. The city turned down his claim.

The city also rejected the First National Bank's claim that a copper pipe was damaged by an LES crew which was putting in a utility pole. Several claims deal with the police department's car towing and arrest procedures.

man after he charged that his car was towed away even though the car wasn't parked illegally. The city paid another man $120 after his car was towed away by police last

The city reimbursed Jason Show-

The city still is investigating a charge by a Lincoln landlord who contends that his rental property was damaged while police were attempting to issue a search warrant.

$139 For False Arrest Roger Robbins was paid $139 after he charged that he was unlawfully arrested and held at the jail.

The city also has its share of accidents. During the last two months, 23 city cars and trucks were involved in accidents. Lincoln Transportation System buses were involved in another 15 accidents.

The numbers aren't unusual. Faimon said.

The city's insurance carrier. Western Securities, usually decides whether a claim is paid, Faimon said, basing its decision on the results of an investigation into each claim. And, while, the City Council usually

Damage Claims Filed Against Fighting Rages In Lebanon City Several Times Each Month 'Funny Money' Shelters

Star Staff Writer

Lena Ladner, Rodney Eirick and

Theresea Whittman probably don't know it, but they have something in

All three had run-ins with a city street sweeper. Well, let's say, the sweeper got a little too close to them and they all decided to do something about it.

They each filed a claim with the city asking for damages incurred when their cars were struck by the sweepers.

Then there's the case of LeRoy Higer and Edward Camp. They seem to have trouble with pesky tree Higer claims a tree limb which had allegedly been tagged by the city for removal, fell on his truck. Camp contends that a tree branch, being trimmed by a parks department worker, fell on his chain link fence. They both filed claims.

Every month citizens file claims for damages with the city wanting money to repair damages they think the city has caused.

5-12 Monthly

Not counting the accidents involving city vehicles and buses, between five and 12 claims are filed each month, according to Asst. City Atty. Jim

During October, ten general liability claims were filed against the city. Eight more were filed in November. Some have been paid. Others already have been denied. The rest are being investigated.

For instance, in the case of the runaway street sweepers, the city paid up in two of the three cases.

Mrs. Ladner was paid $461, while Eirick received $334. The city and its insurance company still are looking into Ms. Whittman's claim.

Limb Claim Rejected

The city rejected the falling-treelimb claim made by Camp on the grounds that the fence was repaired by the parks department. The other claim is being studied.

During the last two months, peoples' claims ranged from the expected to the bizarre.

A woman fell on a sidewalk and fractured her wrist. Claim denied. Another woman wants to be paid for damages incurred after she hit a pile of dirt, causing her car to collide with another vehicle. The city still is looking into that one

Then there's the case of John Kroon who's blaming the city for his dirty laundry. The city is checking into Kroon's claim that "various items" were ruined in his washing machine when the sewer backed up.

Trench Claim Denied

Another man is contending that the Lincoln Electric System goofed while filling in and packing a trench. His walls and basement were damaged, he said. The city turned down his claim.

The city also rejected the First National Bank's claim that a copper pipe was damaged by an LES crew which was putting in a utility pole. Several claims deal with the police department's car towing and arrest procedures.

The city reimbursed Jason Showman after he charged that his car was towed away even though the car wasn't parked illegally.

The city paid another man $120 after his car was towed away by police last month.

The city still is investigating a charge by a Lincoln landlord who contends that his rental property was damaged while police were attempting to issue a search warrant.

$139 For False Arrest Roger Robbins was paid $139 after he charged that he was unlawfully arrested and held at the jail. The city also has its share of accidents. During the last two months, 23 city cars and trucks were involved in accidents. Lincoln Transportation System buses were involved in another 15 accidents. The numbers aren't unusual, Faimon said.

The city's insurance carrier, Western Securities, usually decides whether a claim is paid, Faimon said, basing its decision on the results of an investigation into each claim.

And, while, the City Council usually rubber stamps the city attorney's office report on the disposition of those claims, every once in a while, somebody yells.

Said Faimon, "It's usually the smallest ones which create the most heat."

John S. Knight III Stabbed To Death

John S. Knight III, a member of the Knight publishing family, was stabbed to death Sunday during an apparent robbery attempt in his apartment, police said. One of Knight's two house guests was injured.

Police Capt. Donald Patterson of the homicide division gave this account:

Three, suspects held Knight and his guests captive for at least an hour.

Mrs. Rosemary McKennon ot New Haven, Conn., escaped from the five-room apartment and ran about 250 feet to the elevator, where she was stabbed by one of the assailants.

It could not be determined whether Mrs. McKennon had fled the apartment before or after Knight was stabbed.

She rode the elevator down to the lobby and told the doorman about the incident.

Knight was found lying on his back on the bedroom floor with a stab wound of the chest. It was not known how long he had been dead.

Patterson speculated that Knight knew his assailants since there was no sign of forced entry.

List Denied To Ford

Washington - The Republican National Committee, caught in an unusual campaign crossfire, has refused to give President Ford's fund-raising organization access to its valuable mailing list of major political contributors. The committee, traditionally the obedient servant of an incumbent president, took this position following a decision that any services it furnished the President, including fund-raising assistance, must also be provided to Ronald Reagan, the former California governor who is challenging Ford for the nomination.

Drug Trafficking Worsens

New York - New York is experiencing its worst illegal narcotics trafficking problems in five years, according to high law enforcement officials. Narcotics investigators believe that not since the late 1960's have such large supplies of heroin and cocaine suspected manipulation of shipping subsidies for grain under the Food for Peace program.

That part of the investigation, the sources said, resulted from reports that some shipping agents, representing foreign embassies, and shipping brokers, had systematically rigged quotations on shipping charges to increase subsidy payments to foreign buyers.

The purpose of the subsidies was to reimburse the foreign buyers under the Food for Peace program for extra costs when they were required to use American-flag ships.

Under the Cargo Preference Act of 1954, at least 50% of such shipments must be carried in American-flag vessels. Subsidies shipments have totaled about $1 billion since the Food for Peace program began, in 1954.

Economist Examines 'Funny Money' By DOMINICK COSTELLO Farm Editor

Dr. Joseph Meisner, an economist at the University of Missouri in Columbia, has become a much-sought-after speaker at farm group meetings because of his one-man campaign to examine non-farm money in the cattle feeding

He has also taken an interest in the plans of some churchrelated groups who would have everyone eat grain instead of meat, a position Meisner has tried to change with some Meisner said.

"Bishop Edward O'Rourke of Peoria, Illinois, recently told a group of seminarians at St. Louis that he is giving up eating fish on Friday in order to save badly needed protein for the hungry in underdeveloped nations around the world," Meisner noted.

The bishop is eating a hamburger from a grass-fed steer instead of the fish. "This is one religious leader who realizes that meat does have a role to play in People eat meat, not grass, and cattle can convert grass to protein people can use," Meisner tells anyone who will listen.

Education Needed

"Even the consumers in the farm states don't understand that we have three times as much wheat as we need to eat in this country. There is a tremendous need for consumer education about how food and fiber is produced and marketed. They need to be told about the hard and sad fact that we must export food to pay for our oil needs,"

Meisner is better known for his study of tax shelter money that has been invested in cattle feeding. Feeders call such money "funny money" and often suggest that this tax shelter money played a role in the price disaster they experienced a year

"A lot of people think that the tax shelter money has left the farm for good, that the huge losses they suffered have really the job of feeding the world. taught the non-farm investor a

Funds Still There

"You don't have to probe very far to find that the cattle investment funds are still operating. In some cases the channel of funds from the big taxpayers to the feedlot has been in the hands of a tax accountant rather than in a fund, but it is still happening," he said.

Meisner points to seasonal cycles in cattle feeding as being calls "a distortion of the feeding picture."

"It is pretty easy to argue that the tax investor makes the swings in the cattle feeding cycle much greater than normal. You have to realize that when a tax investor loses money, that it is money he would have to have paid in taxes anyway. It is quite different for the family farmer who is losing his grocery money," Meisner said.

Meisner warns feeders that their efforts to cure the problem by a change in tax laws could be a two-edged sword that could cut the man it was designed to protect.

'Open The Window' "We don't want to close the door to cash accounting by a farmer. We need to open the window to some new tax ideas," he argued.

"We could improve the system of income averaging so that a non-farmer with a one-time large income wouldn't be inclined to go to farming to have a risk," he suggested.

Rural Daykin Pair Named Outstanding Farm Couple'

South Sioux City - Mr. and Mrs. Gene L. Thomas of Daykin have been selected as the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation's "Outstanding Young Farmer and Rancher Award Couple of 1975."

The award was announced Sunday at the federation's annual convention here.

In 10 years, the 30-year-old Jefferson County man has developed his farming career from a parttime venture which helped him through the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture - to a 750-acre operation. And during those years, he has developed a hog farrowing-to-finish program that produces 400 head yearly and a herd of 50 brood sows.

The Thomases are both graduates of NU, where he received a B.S. in animal science and she received a B.S. in home economics education and extension. He also has taken ranch and farm management courses at Southeast Community Technical College at Fairbury. Mrs. Thomas taught home economics at Bruning High School from 1970-74 and has been teaching one class at Fairbury College.

Thomas says hogs have been the foundation of his livestock enterprise since his high school FFA work. He buys some feeder pigs each year in addition to his production, and has increased his cow herd as more pasture has become available.

In 1970, the Thomases purchased 320 acres, of which approximately 130 acres were irrigated. This permitted him to begin feeding out cattle instead of selling them as yearlings. Currently, all livestock born on the farm is fed out, both cattle and hogs.

Thomas says the key to his hog first with cows then with sows operation is a large healthy litter which gets off to a fast start. He tries to switch small pigs to grind and mix rations as soon as they are eating, which he says reduces scouring and lowers feeding costs.

growers in particular, are organizing a legal fight to end the practice of embargos on exporting crops of any kind. The State Department apparently expects to lose the case if it ever comes to court. This could eventually help farm exports, provided the threat is carried out successfully.

Market trends are still upward but this isn't going to last beyond Jan. 1 because a lot of farmers will dump grain then in order to pay new crop bills.

Many farmers are selling grain now after figuring their tax bill. Some made less income than they expected or expenses were higher than expected, and some feel that grain prices will drop more after Jan. 1. They figure it is better to sell now and pay a higher income tax than wait and take a lower price in January.

Rural Daykin Pair Named Outstanding Farm Couple'

South Sioux City - Mr. and Mrs. Gene L. Thomas of Daykin have been selected as the Young Farmer and Rancher Award Couple of 1975.

The award was announced Sunday at the federation's annual convention here.

In 10 years, the 30-year-old Jefferson County man has developed his farming career from a parttime venture which helped him through the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture — to a 750-acre operation. And during those years, he has developed a hog farrowing-to-finish program that produces 400 head yearly and a herd of 50 brood sows.

The Thomases are both graduates of NU, where he received a B.S. in animal science and she received a B.S. in home economics education and extension. He also has taken ranch and farm management courses at Southeast Community Technical College at Fairbury. Mrs. Thomas taught home economics at Bruning High School from 1970-74 and has been teaching one class at Fairbury College.

Thomas says hogs have been the foundation of his livestock enterprise since his high school FFA work. He buys some feeder pigs each year in addition to his production, and has increased his cow herd as more pasture has become available

In 1970, the Thomases purchased 320 acres, of which approximately 130 acres were irrigated. This permitted him to begin feeding out cattle instead of selling them as yearlings. Currently, all livestock born on the farm is fed out, both cattle and hogs

Who can blame Lancaster County Commissioner Bob Colin for feeling that somebody is out to get him?

The disclosure last week that Colin's missing performance bond was discovered months ago but destroyed on the advice of County Atty. Ron Lahners is enough to make anyone suspicious.

Colin also pleaded no contest recently to misdemeanor charges of falsifying a tax statement and was found guilty in county court and sentenced to unsupervised probation and community service work. Colin and County Assessor Fritz Meyer, who is charged with aiding and abetting Colin in the misdemeanor offense, have accused each other of lying about Meyer's alleged complicity. The fact that Meyer's case has not come to trial yet tempers comment on that situation but there are indications that the falsified statement might not have come to light had someone other than Colin submitted it. And there is no lack of joy among Colin's political enemies that the commissioner was found out.

The performance bond incident ostensibly was over and forgotten months ago. Colin won re-election in November, 1974. Two weeks or so after taking office for another term, it was discovered that a $5,-000 performance bond covering Colin was not on file with the county court as state law requires. Colin swore that he had purchased the bond, that it was delivered to his insurance agent and that it was to have been mailed to him at the County-City Building. When it could not be located, Colin's seat was declared vacant in late January. After a week's tense wait he was reappointed to the county board by a committee comprised of Lahners and County Clerk Carl Hartman and County Treasurer Frank Golden, both political enemies of Colin who apparently approached the reappointment unethusiastically and with some reluctance.

Now it is disclosed that an open envelope addressed to Colin with the missing first bond in it was discovered several days after Colin's reinstatement among a pile of papers in the county clerk's office. When it was brought to Lahners' attention, the country attorney advised LeRoy Ihrie, chief deputy clerk, to destroy the bond and forget the episode. Colin was not informed of the bond's discovery.

'The decision was just to let sleeping dogs lie," said Ihrie. Said Lahners at a press conference last week: "It didn't strike me as being important. The fight to get him reappointed had been won. At that point the fact that the bond was found did not matter."

It did matter, of course.

Why was the envelope with the bond in it, addressed to Colin, discovered in the clerk's office? That question should be answered, although in all likelihood it will not be.

Also, Colin should have been informed of its discovery to support his claim that he had followed the correct procedure in qualifying for another term in office. And considering that Colin spent a great deal of time and money trying to track down the bond, he deserved the peace of mind of knowing where it ended up.

Something is fishy, as usual, in the County Courthouse.

It could be, of course, that there is no conspiracy to "get" Colin; that the bond episode was merely a string of unusual coincidences and that Lahners' advice to destroy the bond once found was only poor judgment without malice.

But at the very least, Lahners and the clerk's office should have had the decency and common courtesy of letting Colin know what happened.

JAMES R. DICKENSON

WASHINGTON - At 5 p.m. last Tuesday, when Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama was scheduled to be the last of the 10 declared Democratic presidential candidates to speak on issues before the Democratic governors conference, it turned out that he was otherwise engaged.

"I was reading the funnies, I guess, or maybe I was looking at TV. Yea, TV, that was it."

Wallace's absence was just another chilling reminder to his gubernatorial colleagues of his potential presence as the wild card in their political deck, as an unguided missile in next year's political confrontations. It was also a reminder that however acute his perception and articulation of the voters' grievances, he is - of the 1976 presidential contenders - one of the least qualified to try to solve

His explanation of his no-show is that he didn't want to extend an already long and presumably tiresome day during which the governors had listened to the nine other hopeful talks about such dreary matters as energy and the economy.

"I was just trying to be gracious by curtailing things and not keeping folks any later," he said. "I thought the main thing was to show unity. I came here to show I'm a Democrat." ☆ ☆ ☆

His fellow governors could conclude only that with graciousness like that, they have no need of surliness. Wallace made it clear that on his list of social priorities, the governors ranked right up there with lizards and bat wings and things that go bump in the night.

Wallace Snubs Governors' Confab "WHO'S THE FRESHEST FACE OF ALL? HELLO-HELLO?

Who did he visit with instead? "I spent some time talking to waiters," he told a group of reporters in his suite at the Washington Hilton Hotel. "I have a better chance with them than with those governors."

Waiters weren't the only group he ranked ahead of the governors. A meeting with an Appalachian development group was one. And then, "You-all wanted to see me, so I came up for that," he told the reporters.

He also came here to be interviewed by a weekly news magazine, "The U.S. News and World's End Report," as he described it. Finally, his wife was going to Philadelphia anyway for a reception in connection with her new book, so he figured he might as well come this far with her. "You-all give the book a good plug, now, you ☆ ☆ ☆

In fact, Wallace made it clear that he thought anybody who would listen to 10 presidential candidates in one day had something loose in his head. "I'm not like those other governors," he explained. "I want to do the talking. I'm damned if I'm going to sit there all day and listen to me and all those others. That's why I like to campaign. I just didn't think that was a good way to present me. I think it was a waste of time."

For all his solicitude about imposing on the governors' time, Wallace wouldn't likely have kept them very long with his discussion of the issues. The problem with the economy, in his view, is excess government spending decreed "by liberals ... that doesn't bring any productive return," for example, money for welfare cheaters and foreign aid.

He also opposes governmentdecreed school busing and is worried about crime, drugs, and pornography. "Everybody has a license to use four-letter words," he complains. "We've got to get back to simple basic morality. We've got to have a spiritual awakening." Articulating these concerns is his best shot. His

While other candidates talked about energy and reviving the economy, Wallace's primary concern with it appears to be generating electricity for capital punishment and instituting a public works program to build. new prisons.

His refusal to appear before the governors prompted speculation about his health. He vigorously denied any problem, and Wednesday afternoon he looked as well as ever.

"Being tired had nothing to do with it," he snapped. "I stay up to midnight or 1 o'clock every night when the legislature is in session." Wallace leaned back in his wheelchair and thumped himself on the chest. "I'm stronger in the arms and shoulders than I've ever been. I just can't walk. Otherwise I feel fine. He is ambiguous about the Democratic Party. He expresses satisfaction that it is moving with him - back to the political center, and says that "A Democrat running on the right platform still is the best representative of the great mass of the people." "I don't talk as much about a third party as the people who write about me do," he said.

Robert Strauss, the Democratic national chairman, and Gov. Philip Noel of Rhode Island, chairman of the governors conference, both swore they hoped Wallace would support the national ticket next

The fact is no one knows what he will demand or do when he arrives at the convention with his bloc of delegates, which presumably will be as large as any other candidate's. "Some of the party hierarchy is ganging up on me and a lot wish I'd just go away," he says.

This is true. They are afraid of the damage he can do if he does pick up his marbles and walk out to run as a third-party candidate.

Snow Removal A Basic

The Omaha Public Works Department says it will try to save money by cutting back on its snow removal efforts. The cutback will be felt most severely in residential areas. Streets there will not be plowed so long as motorists can "move within reason" as judged by the department. Mayor Ed Zorinsky apparently is going along with the idea.

The Omaha World-Herald views the money-saving technique with some alarm, suggesting that it could backfire and cause a political blizzard. The Ornaha paper said that people "know that snow plowing and removal costs money. We think they are also willing to pay for good service.'

Last week Mayor Helen Boosalis said Lincoln will not cut back snow removal programs to save money, unless the winter is unusually severe and the city is hit by continual storms, in which case the Public Works Department here may not be able to remove snow from residential streets.

We're glad to hear there will be no letup in Lincoln snow removal efforts, despite some questions which arose about plowing, removal and sanding efforts in connection with the pre-Thanksgiving storm.

Snow removal in this part of the country is a basic municipal service and people expect to pay for it.

each of which would hold its presidential primaries on one of six designated Tuesdays between late March and mid-June of presidential years. The six primary election dates, two weeks apart, would be assigned by lot to the six regions by the Federal Elections Commission five months before the first primary, and Mondale suggests a few simple rules. "States," he says, "would retain the right to determine the particular type of primary they wish to have how candidates qualify for inclusion on the ballot." But, he adds, "voters in state presidential primaries would be allowed to participate only in the party of their registered affiliation, and states would be prohibited from listing the names of delegate candidates on the primary ballot without indicating which presidential candidate, if any, he or she is pledged to

Mondale calls this a "modest proposal" open to objection and amendment, but he believes that it would bring a degree of order and rationality into the present system. "At present," he observes, there is no structure whatsoever. There are instead 55 separate structures, each unrelated to the other and often seemingly unrelated to the ostensible goal of some of them strikingly different from others - New York with New England, for example. But he is trying to start a debate, and the chances are that after the confusion of next year's primaries, the disaster level will have risen high enough to force some changes. No present candidate, with the possible

"It is fatuous to describe as participatory democracy a nominating system that involves a wretchedly small proportion of the electorate, that in some states encourages Democrats to help choose Republican candidates and vice versa, that grossly distorts the significance of the first few primary contests in an election year, and rewards with money and inordinate publicity the states that hold them."

The only hope is that next year's 30 primaries will be such a silly scramble that, as in other fields, they will force the long overdue reforms.

careful and orderly consideration. It ain't easy to piece together a spending blueprint for state government in a few weeks - or months. Hundreds of millions of dollars are involved.

Sometimes, it may seem, the more you learn about the programs involved in state government spending, the more difficult the decisions are. And conditions which point toward budget decisions tend to change during the months the Legislature is in session.

Federal funding which may appear to be available now for 1976-77 may not be there by the time the Unicameral adjourns next spring. New budgetary needs may result from court decisions of an increase in college enrollments or rising population at state institutions, or

When the Legislature budgets, it is forced to look ahead more than a year. And the Appropriations Committee's early start this time means its budget decisions must hold up for 18 months. Not an easy task,

습 습 습

Okay, so after all that rambling (which did, heh, heh, get me through one-third of the alloted space), how might the early budget beginning affect the 1976 legislative session?

It should permit Speaker Jules Burbach to be able to arrange the session in a comparatively orderly fashion. There is a tendency to leave all major decisions for the final weeks, with the budget competing with other key balls for floor attention. That problem could be eased this time around.

A less harried rush toward the end of the 1976 session might be as beneficial to good government as to senatorial health.

This week's preliminary deliberations could establish some guidelines for future decisions. Will revenue projections be used to set the limits for the 1976-77 budget? Will there be a specific effort this time to concentrate on the legitimacy of funding current programs at present levels rather than on proposed im-

Will the 1976 tax increase produce a conservative budgetary posture aimed at preventing a further tax hike, or a more liberal budgetary view looking toward an increasing general fund balance in the latter half of the coming calendar provements or new programs?

Perhaps today's committee discussion, and the one scheduled to continue on Tuesday, will provide some hints. Maybe even some answers.

There has always been a tendency in the committee and on the floor of the Legislature to want to tie budgetary decisions to revenue projections. Now some people, including at least one member of the State Board of Equalization, have even started talking about institutionalizing such a procedure with the

But that's not the way to begin to establish a state budget.

If you consider tax rates to be static, figure out the anticipated revenue from those rates, and keep your budget within that figure, you are not budgeting according to need.

Good government would require you to budget according to the needs of the state, then set tax rates at a level required to produce the revenue to fund those needs. Right?

Tax rates might go up. Tax rates might go down. And they have traveled both directions in Nebraska since the establishment of the salesincome tax system.

Meeting needs does not mean accepting frills or spending recklessly. State government has done neither. Most of the increase in spending from sales-income tax revenue has gone to local government aid or reimbursement programs, with a resulting decrease in the burden on property taxes.

The budget process which begins today will not be an exercise in proliferate spending. That's the one certainty in today's beginnings.

Stress On Open Meetings Lincoln, Neb.

It has been implied that the League of Women Voters of Nebraska is something less than open. Our board meetings are open and we urge people to attend. At the meeting on Nov. 25, when the vote on the Sunshine Initiative was taken, we had several people observing. Furthermore, our minutes are on file at the League office at 1614 N Street and they are available to anyone who wants to see them. Our votes are not always unanimous, but they are always available.

It was our feeling on the vote regarding the initiative campaign sparked by Common Cause that the actual vote count was not the important issue, but rather that the important issue was the decision by the board to support the Sunshine Initiative. I am pleased that there is so much interest in the business of our board. There were 16 board members persent at the meeting Nov. 25. There were eight votes in favor of joining the coalition and five votes against joining the coalition. There were two board members who declined to vote because they had not read the petition. The president votes only in the event of a tie.

The actual vote count is old news now, because once the board makes a decision, the entire board works to achieve the goal that has been set. The League is a diverse group and the votes by the board reflect this because the individual board members do not all vote the same way.

I would like to stress again that anyone who would like to attend the meetings of our board is most welcome. We have a printed agenda and it is available one week in advance of the board meeting. A schedule of the dates for board meetings is available at the League office.

If the Soviet Union had to raise all its own food instead of being supplied by us (usually at a bargain price), it wouldn't be able to afford to intervene in the affiars of a country which has been independent for less than one month.

What's wrong with us today? Is it our isolationist reaction to Vietnam that says don't concern ourselves with anything outside our borders? Is it our society's vogue liberal "mind set" that is prone to ignore whatever the Communist nations do, no matter what? Are we transfixed with detente to the point that we need it like a heroin addict "needs" depe?

When it was brought to Lahners' attention, the country attorney advised LeRoy Ihrie. chief deputy clerk, to destroy the bond and forget the episode. Colin was not informed of the bond's discovery.

"The decision was just to let sleeping dogs lie," said Ihrie. Said Lahners at a press conference last week: "It didn't strike me as being important. The fight to get him reappointed had been won. At that point the fact that the bond was found did not matter."

It did matter, of course.

Why was the envelope with the bond in it, addressed to Colin, discovered in the clerk's office? That question should be answered, although in all likelihood it will

Also, Colin should have been informed of its discovery to support his claim that he had followed the correct procedure in qualifying for another term in office. And considering that Colin spent a great deal of time and money trying to track down the bond, he deserved the peace of mind of knowing where it ended up.

Something is fishy, as usual, in the County Courthouse.

It could be, of course, that there is no conspiracy to "get" Colin; that the bond episode was merely a string of unusual coincidences and that Lahners' advice to destroy the bond once found was only poor judgment without malice.

But at the very least, Lahners and the clerk's office should have had the decency and common courtesy of letting Colin know what happened.

JAMES R. DICKENSON

WASHINGTON - At 5 p.m. last Tuesday, when Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama was scheduled to be the last of the 10 declared Democratic presidential candidates to speak on issues before the Democratic governors conference, it turned out that he was otherwise engaged.

"I was reading the funnies, I guess, or maybe I was looking at TV. Yea, TV, that was it."

Wallace's absence was just another chilling reminder to his gubernatorial colleagues of his potential presence as the wild card in their political deck, as an unguided missile in next year's political confrontations. It was also a reminder that however acute his perception and articulation of the voters' grievances, he is - of the 1976 presidential contenders - one of the least qualified to try to solve

His explanation of his no-show is that he didn't want to extend an already long and presumably tiresome day during which the governors had listened to the nine other hopeful talks about such dreary matters as energy and the economy.

"I was just trying to be gracious by curtailing things and not keeping folks any later," he said. "I thought the main thing was to show unity. I came here to show I'm a Democrat."

公 公 公 His fellow governors could conclude only that with graciousness like that, they have no need of surliness. Wallace made it clear that on his list of social priorities, the governors ranked right up there with lizards and bat wings and things that go bump in the night.

Wallace Snubs Governors' Confab "WHO'S THE FRESHEST FACE OF ALL? HELLO-HELLO?

YOU LISTENING TO ME?"

"I spent some time talking to waiters," he told a group of reporters in his suite at the Washington Hilton Hotel. "I have a better chance with them than with those governors."

Waiters weren't the only group he ranked ahead of the governors. A meeting with an Appalachian development group was one. And then, "You-all wanted to see me, so I came up for that," he told the reporters.

He also came here to be interviewed by a weekly news magazine, "The U.S. News and World's End Report," as he described it. Finally, his wife was going to Philadelphia anyway for a reception in connection with her new book, so he figured he might as well come this far with her. "You-all give the book a good plug, now, you

In fact, Wallace made it clear that he thought anybody who would listen to 10 presidential candidates in one day had something loose in his head. "I'm not like those other governors," he explained. "I want to do the talking. I'm damned if I'm going to sit there all day and listen to me and all those others. That's why I like to campaign. I just didn't think that was a good way to present me. I think it was a waste of time.'

For all his solicitude about imposing on the governors' time, Wallace wouldn't likely have kept them very long with his discussion of the issues. The problem with the economy, in his view, is excess government spending decreed "by liberals ... that doesn't bring any productive return," for example. money for welfare cheaters and foreign aid.

He also opposes governmentdecreed school busing and is worried about crime, drugs, and pornography. "Everybody has a license to use four-letter words," he complains. "We've got to get back to simple basic morality. We've got to have a spiritual awakening." Articulating these concerns is his best shot. His resolution for crime and immorality is "swift retribution." * * *

While other candidates talked about energy and reviving the economy, Wallace's primary concern with it appears to be generating electricity for capital punishment and instituting a public works program to build new prisons.

His refusal to appear before the governors prompted speculation about his health. He vigorously denied any problem, and Wednesday afternoon he looked as well as ever.

"Being tired had nothing to do with it," he snapped. "I stay up to midnight or 1 o'clock every night when the legislature is in session." Wallace leaned back in his wheelchair and thumped himself on the chest. "I'm stronger in the arms and shoulders than I've ever been. I just can't walk. Otherwise I feel

He is ambiguous about the Democratic Party. He expresses satisfaction that it is moving with him - back to the political center, and says that "A Democrat running on the right platform still is the best representative of the great mass of the people.

"I don't talk as much about a third party as the people who write about me do," he said.

Robert Strauss, the Democratic national chairman, and Gov. Philip Noel of Rhode Island, chairman of the governors conference, both swore they hoped Wallace would support the national ticket next

The fact is no one knows what he will demand or do when he arrives at the convention with his bloc of delegates, which presumably will be as large as any other candidate's. "Some of the party hierarchy is ganging up on me and a lot wish I'd just go away," he says.

This is true. They are afraid of the damage he can do if he does pick up his marbles and walk out to run as a third-party candidate.

Mondale Tries To Improve Primary

WASHINGTON — The only happy thought around here these days is that so many things are going wrong that maybe something will finally be done about them. But only maybe.

It's a well-known rule in Washington that nothing compels reform like some imminent disaster, or spectacular stupidity, and we now have so much of both on the national agenda that you have to have

Each day's horror stories about the past crimes of the FBI and the CIA, for example, add to the prospect that the Congress will finally take these secret agencies by the throat.

The news from the political front, with 30 presidential primary elections, is fast becoming a national joke and actually forcing a little serious thought about fundamental electoral reform.

This may not be the best way to run a democracy, but the record suggests that nothing succeeds like failure. New York City had to go broke before we got fiscal reform. It took Vietnam to bring the military under some kind of control, and Watergate to get rid of Richard Nixon. The price was high but some lessons were Nevertheless, Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota has come forward with a bill to improve if not correct what he calls the present mindless, irrational and chaotic presidential primary system.

He rejects the notion of a single So there is a chance that we will make national primary election, on the grounds similar progress in other fields. We are that it would undermine the national conventions, give the well-known and well- selecting the party's best candidate as its heeled candidates an unfair advantage nominee. and risk too much on a single roll of the

He proposes instead that the states and territories be divided into six regions, each of which would hold its presidential primaries on one of six designated Tuesdays between late March and mid-June of presidential years. The six primary election dates, two weeks apart, would be assigned by lot to the six regions by the Federal Elections Commission five months before the first primary, and Mondale suggests a few simple rules.

"States," he says, "would retain the right to determine the particular type of primary they wish to have, how candidates qualify for inclusion on the ballot." But, he adds, "voters in state presidential primaries would be allowed to participate only in the party of their registered affiliation, and states would be prohibited from listing the names of delegate candidates on the primary ballot without indicating which presidential candidate, if any, he or she is pledged to

Mondale calls this a "modest proposal" open to objection and amendment, but he believes that it would bring a degree of order and rationality into the present system. "At present," he observes, 'there is no structure whatsoever. There are instead 55 separate structures, each unrelated to the other and often seemingly unrelated to the ostensible goal of

Unfortunately, he sees no chance of any reform before next year's primaries. He is urging President Ford to establish an elections commission to study the whole problem, and bring its recommendations to the Congress before the end of the bicentennial year.

There will obviously be objections to the states he has put in the six regions. some of them strikingly different from others - New York with New England. for example. But he is trying to start a debate, and the chances are that after the confusion of next year's primaries, the disaster level will have risen high enough to force some changes.

No present candidate, with the possible exception of Jimmy Carter of Georgia, defends the present system of crossvoting and selective testing of candidates' popularity. As The New York Times observed recently: "It is fatuous to describe as participatory democracy a nominating system that involves a wretchedly small proportion of the electorate, that in some states encourages Democrats to help choose Republican candidates and vice versa, that grossly distorts the significance of the first few primary contests in an election year, and rewards with money and inordinate publicity the states that hold them. The only hope is that next year's 30 primaries will be such a silly scramble that, as in other fields, they will force the long overdue reforms.

Stress On Open Meetings

Lincoln, Neb. It has been implied that the League of Women Voters of Nebraska is something less than open. Our board meetings are open and we urge people to attend. At the meeting on Nov. 25, when the vote on the Sunshine Initiative was taken, we had several people observing. Furthermore, our minutes are on file at the League office at 1614 N Street and they are available to anyone who wants to see them. Our votes are not always unanimous, but they are always available. It was our feeling on the vote regarding the initiative campaign sparked by Common Cause that the actual vote count was not the important issue, but rather that the important issue was the decision by the board to support the Sunshine Initiative. I am pleased that there is so much interest in the business of our board. There were 16 board members persent at the meeting Nov. 25. There were eight votes in favor of joining the coalition and five votes against joining the coalition. There were two board members who declined to vote because they had not read the petition. The president votes only in the event of a tie.

The actual vote count is old news now, because once the board makes a decision, the entire board works to achieve the goal that has been set. The League is a diverse group and the votes by the board reflect this because the individual board members do not all vote the same way.

I would like to stress again that anyone who would like to attend the meetings of our board is most welcome. We have a printed agenda and it is available one week in advance of the board meeting. A schedule of the dates for board meetings is available at the League office.

According to a front-page article in The Star of Nov. 28, the United States is doing very little in its efforts to save energy. Installation of insulation is a positive attack on energy consumption. As a Lincoln builder and a concerned citizen, I would certainly support the introduction of this type of an ordinance as an energy-saving measure.

Favors Wheat Embargo On Russia

In reference to the article in the Dec. 2 Star concerning the intervention of Soviet troops in Angola: I'm sure if we would just send them a few more million tons of our grain and asked them real nice (so as not to upset detente), they would go back to Russia and leave the Angolans to determine their own form of government.

If the Soviet Union had to raise all its own food instead of being supplied by us (usually at a bargain price), it wouldn't be able to afford to intervene in the affiars of a country which has been independent for less than one month.

What's wrong with us today? Is it our isolationist reaction to Vietnam that says don't concern ourselves with anything outside 'our borders? Is it our society's vogue liberal "mind set" that is prone to ignore whatever the Communist nations do, no matter what? Are we transfixed with detente to the point that we need it like a heroin addict "needs" dope?

Angola may be thousands of miles away but the situation deserves more than a mildly worded objection by Henry Kissinger. Action is warranted and I say the proper action is no more wheat for Russia until they get out of Angola!

Coach's Family Gone Christmas

Star Staff Writer

Dear Santa: Please come to our house early again this year. Susie, Ann and Mike

Tom Osberne's children aren't at home for Christmas. And Big Red fans want to keep it that way.

Spending Christmas in Miami, New Orleans, Dallas or Phoenix wherever the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers are playing in a Bowl game - has become a way of life for the Osbornes and the families of other coaches.

Admitting that it's a little hectic to make preparations for Christmas so early, Mrs. Osborne says that "as a coach's wife, you learn to do what you have to do.'

Looking back at her own youth and the Christmases she spent with her family, the wife of the head coach says that "this isn't what I thought life was going to

But she notes she has adjusted to it and the children "have never known anything else.

'We just have Christmas some other day - you can change any day you want to another day.'

This year Santa is scheduled to arrive at the Osbornes on Dec. 18 in time for Christmas morning Dec. 19. And a gathering with grandparents will probably have to wait until next New Year's. according to Mrs. Osborne.

Setting Christmas Dec. 19 allows the children just one day to enjoy their Christmas treasures before leaving for Phoenix Dec. 20.

"We try to get them a few things they can take with them," Mrs. Osborne says.

But Christmas at a bowl game is a fun experience for the some 25 to 30 children of the coaching staff who journey with their parents each year for the grand finale of the football season.

The bowls always have many activities planned for the coaches, players and their families, according to Mrs. Osborne.

And Santa Claus usually makes an appearance wherever they're staying.

"The children have a good time with the other children and they have all come to know each other quite well."

The Osbornes have taken their children to a bowl game each year since Mike, who is now 10, was 2 years old.

The youngsters look forward to going swimming on Christmas Day and Mrs. Osborne, who says she is a "tennis freak," manages to find the tennis courts.

"They tell me they have great ones in Tempe.'

With small children, Mrs. Osborne says it is sometimes a "trauma" to decide whether to take them or leave them at home.

The Osbornes have opted to take their children each year, but Mrs. Osborne was forced to miss one bowl trip due to the arrival of Susie, now 5, who joined the Osborne family the same day her father and the team left for the bowl.

"You get used to living this way," she says, adding that she hopes this will enable their children to better adjust to circumstances as they grow older.

Mrs. Osborne says she doesn't prepare a traditional Christmas dinner at home but tries to keep the day as informal and relaxed as possible.

'I try to get the shopping done early, the house decorated and the cards mailed," but there is little time for entertaining or the "extras" with their schedule.

Because of the tight scheduling in December for recruiting and practice sessions, Coach Osborne has little time to spend with the family.

"I used to try to plan putting up the tree and decorations when Tom would be home, but I gave that up," she said, noting that they would wait and wait until he came home and "he would just have to turn around and leave again.'

For this reason, they don't try to do any entertaining during the holidays.

"Perhaps we're selfish, but we like to be alone as a family whenever everyone is home.'

Coach's Family Gone Christmas

Star Staff Writer

Dear Santa:

Please come to our house early again this year. Susie, Ann and Mike

Tom Osborne's children aren't at home for Christmas.

And Big Red fans want to keep it that way.

Spending Christmas in Miami, New Orleans, Dallas or Phoenix wherever the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers are playing in a Bowl game - has become a way of life for the Osbornes and the families of other coaches.

Admitting that it's a little hectic to make preparations for Christmas so early, Mrs. Osborne says that "as a coach's wife, you learn to do what you have to do.

Looking back at her own youth and the Christmases she spent with her family, the wife of the head coach says that "this isn't what I thought life was going to

to it and the children "have never known anything else.

'We just have Christmas some other day - you can change any day you want to another day.

This year Santa is scheduled to arrive at the Osbornes on Dec. 18 in time for Christmas morning Dec. 19. And a gathering with grandparents will probably have to wait until next New Year's, according to Mrs. Osborne.

Setting Christmas Dec. 19 allows the children just one day to enjoy their Christmas treasures before leaving for Phoenix Dec. 20.

"We try to get them a few things they can take with them," Mrs. Osborne says.

But Christmas at a bowl game is a fun experience for the some 25 to 30 children of the coaching staff who journey with their parents each year for the grand finale of the football season.

The bowls always have many activities planned for the coaches, players and their families, according to Mrs.

And Santa Claus usually makes an appearance wherever they're staying.

"The children have a good time with the other children and they have all come to know each other quite well.

The Osbornes have taken their children to a bowl game each year since Mike, who is now 10, was 2 years old.

The youngsters look forward to going swimming on Christmas Day and Mrs. Osborne, who says she is a "tennis freak," manages to find the tennis courts.

Author Wilder Dies At Age 78

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) -Pulitzer prize-winning book, "Theophilus North," in playwright and author Thornton Wilder died in his sleep at his home Sunday. He was 78.

Wilder, author of "Our Town" and numerous other plays and novels, died of a heart attack, a family spokesman said. He was brought by ambulance from his Hamden, Conn., home to the Hospital of St. Raphael here, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Wilder won three Pulitzer prizes. The first was in 1928 for the novel "The Bridge of San Luis Rey." The others were for the plays "Our Town" in 1938 and "The Skin of Our Teeth" in

He also received the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian citation, in 1963, and was the first recipient of the National Book Committee's National Medal for Literature, which was presented at the White House in 1967.

Wilder's 1954 play "The Matchmakei" was the basis of the musical "Hello Dolly," which opened in 1964 and eventually became Broadway's longest running musical.

His book "The Eighth Day" was published in 1967.

Wilder completed his last October 1973. It was the story of a young man's adventures in the 1920s in the seacoast resort of Newport, R.I.

The "unanswered questions" in the Sept. 24 shooting death of Sherdell Lewis reared their ugly heads again Sunday night during a meeting at the First United Methodist Church.

The meeting, a public forum on calling for a grand jury investigation, was sponsored by the church and featured County Atty. Ron Lahners and City Councilman John Robinson.

A crowd of about 100 heard Lahners explain the grand jury and its effects on the case.

The questions were raised by Robinson who said, "Mr. Lahners and I don't agree on this topic at all."

Lahners explained that the grand jury is a means for determining if there is probable cause to hold a criminal trial. The clothes. decision to hold a trial, called a "true bill", would be the only information released.

Lahners said he didn't feel the evidence was sufficient to warrant calling a grand jury.

The questions Robinson asked were: Why were 14 men needed came from the audience in to serve a warrant? playwright and author Thornton Wilder died in his sleep at his home Sunday. He was 78.

Wilder, author of "Our Town" and numerous other plays and novels, died of a heart attack, a family spokesman said. He was brought by ambulance from his Hamden, Conn., home to the Hospital of St. Raphael here, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Wilder won three Pulitzer prizes. The first was in 1928 for the novel "The Bridge of San Luis Rey." The others were for the plays "Our Town" in 1938 and "The Skin of Our Teeth" in

He also received the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian citation, in 1963, and was the first recipient of the National Book Committee's National Medal for Literature, which was presented at the White House in 1967.

Wilder's 1954 play "The Matchmaker" was the basis of the musical "Hello Dolly," which opened in 1964 and eventually became Broadway's longest running musical.

His book "The Eighth Day" was published in 1967.

The "unanswered questions" in the Sept. 24 shooting death of Sherdell Lewis reared their ugly heads again Sunday night during a meeting at the First United Methodist Church.

The meeting, a public forum on calling for a grand jury investigation, was sponsored by the church and featured County Atty. Ron Lahners and City Councilman John Robinson. A crowd of about 100 heard Lahners explain the grand jury and its effects on the case. The questions were raised by Robinson who said, "Mr. Lahners and I don't agree on this topic at all.' Lahners explained that the grand jury is a means for determining if there is probable cause to hold a criminal trial. None of the information from the grand jury could be made public. The decision to hold a trial, called a "true bill", would be the only information released.

Lahners said he didn't feel the evidence was sufficient to warrant calling a grand jury.

The questions Robinson asked were: Why were 14 men needed to serve a warrant? Where is the missing $23 which was to have been used to purchase drugs trol. from Lewis? Why hasn't the FBI released their report? Why didn't Lahners give the decision to prosecute the officer who shot

Hart Fires Cards To Win

For once in their lives, the St. Louis Cardinals decided not to wait around for Jim Bakken to win one in the last few seconds. On Sunday, they turned quarterback Jim Hart loose early, and the Dallas Cowboys were never

In what Dallas Coach Tom Landry called an "excercise in excellence," Hart fired three first-half touchdown passes and directed an explosive offense led the Cardinals to a 31-17 victory in the National Football League's biggest game.

There were two others of major importance. Washington used Mark Moseley's 39-yard field goal with two seconds remaining to boost the Redskins to a 30-27 victory over the Atlanta Falcons. And Miami, playing well despite an incredible run of injuries, defeated Buffalo 31-21 as third-string quarterback Don Strock threw two touchdown passes and ran for another score.

Those games weighed heavily on the NFL's two hot division races. The St. Louis victory boosted the Cardinals into sole possession of first place in the National Conference East Divithe two seems likely to win the conference's wild card berth and join St. Louis in the playoffs.

The Miami victory gave the Dolphins a 9-3 record and kept them a game ahead of the Baltimore Colts in the American Conference's East Division. The Buffalo loss put the Bills two games back and probably dropped them out of playoff con-

Elsewhere in the NFL, Baltimore slammed the New York Giants 21-0 as Lydell Mitchell became the first Colt ever to gain 1,000 yards in a season. And San Diego avoided becoming the first league team to ever lose 14 games in a season when the Chargers came from behind to nudge Kansas City 28-20 for their first victory.

In other games, it was Pittsburgh 31, Cleveland 17; Cincinnati 31, Philadelphia 0; New York Jets 39, New England 28; Los Angeles 14, New Orleans 7; Minnesota 24, Green Bay 3; Chicago 25, Detroit 21, and Houston 27, San Francisco 13.

In St. Louis, the Cardinals marched to a score with the opening kickoff, a pass from sion with a 9-3 record. Dallas and Hart to Terry Metcalf covering Washington are tied for second the final 30 yards. After a Dallas with 8-4 marks and the winner of field goal, the Cardinals came Mel Gray with a 49-yard scoring bomb.

Then the Cardinals marched 65 yards with Steve Jones scoring on a one-yard plunge before Hart and Gray teamed up again, on a six-yard scoring play. By then it was 28-3 and Dallas could not recover.

The Washington victory was the fifth time in the last six weeks that a Redskin game was decided on the game's final play. Once again, it was Billy Kilmer's last-minute heroics that did it.

The Falcons' Nick Mike-Mayer tied the game at 27-27 with 61 seconds left with a 44-yard field goal. Kilmer, who completed 25 of 38 for 320 yards and three touchdowns despite playing with a broken bone in his foot, completed five passes for 56 yards to move the Redskins into position for Moseley's winning kick.

Mitchell rushed for 119 yards in 23 carries and scored a touchdown as Baltimore won its seventh straight game to stay in playoff contention. The performance raised his season's total to 1,008 yards, breaking the club record of 963 yards he had set in 1973.

Fran Tarkenton came within one touchdown pass of tying Johnny Unitas' all-time career three of them in the Vikings easy victory over Green Bay.

The Steelers found themselves behind Cleveland when the Browns struck for two touchdowns in a 14-second span of the first half. But Terry Bradshaw and Lynn Swann hooked up on a pair of third quarter touchdown passes and the Steelers had their 10th straight victory.

The Chicago Bears avenged an earlier season loss to Detroit-the one in which Jack Pardee accused the Lions of laughing at his team. Roland Harper ran 27 yards for the decisive touchdown with 4:22 left after rookie quarterback Bob Avellini had performed San Diego avoided earning a place in the record books when rookie running back Rickey Young scored a pair of touchdowns to lead the way to a 28-20 victory over Kansas City. It was the Chargers' first victory in 12 games and it saved them the distinction of being the only NFL team to ever lose all 14 games. In Philadelphia, Kenny Anderson had another big day as the Bengals swamped the Eagles 31-0. He completed 20 of 35 passes for 223 yards. Nebraska's Fort Shows

St. Louis Cardinals' Terry Metcalf catches a 30-yard touchdown pass the hard way, between his legs, in the Cardinals' 31-17 win over the Dallas Cowboys.

New York Jets' Richard Caster (88) appears to have lost his head as he is hit by New England's Steve King. The Jets won 30-28.

Omaha - Roger Capan won the open division and the overall championship in the Junior and Senior Invitational Judo meet at Offutt Air Force Base Sunday afternoon.

Other Lincolnites placing in the meet from the Sho-Rei-Kan school in Lincoln included Rodney Whitehall second at 176pounds: Dick Carble second at 205; and Leo Guthmiler second in open class.

In the junior division Mark Czjakowski placed third in the 9-10 age group, Jay Jordon first in the 11-12 group, Bill Hunting third in the 13-14 group and Rex Jordon second in the 15-16-yearold division.

Johnny Miller and Lou Graham and Graham a two-under par 70 against Hsieh's one-over par 73

The United States had only a one-stroke lead over Taiwan as the two teams teed off together in the last group from the No. 1 tee and a large gallery followed them through the 18 holes despite the hot weather.

The spectators broke through the ropes bordering the fairway and rushed to the tee of the final 18th hole before the American and Taiwanese players putted.

The Taiwanese pair was expected to give the Americans a tough battle in the hot weather but Graham, the 1975 U.S. Open champion playing in the World Cup tournament for the first time, shot a brilliant four-underpar 32 and Miller a 34 on the front nine to pick up a sevenstroke lead over Taiwan. Hsieh had a par 36 and Kuo a one-overpar 37. It seemed there was no doubt at that point of a sure U.S. victory over Taiwan in the team event.

Graham shot a two-over-par 38 on the back nine but Miller picked up two more birdies for a 34. Hsieh bogeyed the 10th and 11th holes and birdied the 17th for a 37, while Kuo birdied the 10th but bogeyed the 16th and 18th for a 37.

Ben Arda of the Philippines birdied the 14th hole to take a one-stroke lead over Miller in the individual competition but Arda took a costly double bogey on the par 4, 15th bole and Miller was ahead by a stroke. to Washington Saturday night at the NU

At the risk of antagonizing this newspaper's "pen pals," let's just say that the boos and "Fire Cip" chants that emerged from the stands with four minutes left were unwarranted.

When Cipriano took Fort out of the game due to defensive lapses, it was apparent that the Chicago senior was not having one of his better games. He hit on just six of 14 field goal attempts.

But what makes Jerry Fort a bona fide all-American is not only his ability to rebound after a sub-par effort, but the way he conducts himself in answering questions afterwards. He didn't make any excuses. He didn't curse writers for asking him questions, which he obviously knew were coming. That's showing class. It's something Jerry

Fort has displayed since he arrived at Nebraska. He treats writers with respect whether the Huskers lose by 20 or win by 20. "I didn't play a very good defensive game,"

Fort said. "But Washington's probably the best team we'll play. Ramsey's one of the top guards in the country. They've got nice depth - their substitutes are as good as their starters." Jerry Fort represents everything positive about Nebraska basketball. It's unfortunate a minority of the 7,500 crowd didn't applaud him for his efforts, rather than using his exit as a chance to jeer Cipriano. Nebraska's 6-6 center Larry Cox noted that Washington's height posed more problems than the Huskies' physical efforts.

"We weren't anticipating a real physical game because they're so tall," said the Denver native. "They gave us trouble with their height. They hit the boards pretty good." "It's tough to handle them and I had to worry about helping the others out," said Cox, who grabbed three rebounds, but was not assessed any personal fouls. One bright point for Nebraska was turnovers.

The Huskers, who have not been plagued by miscues this season, committed just 13 while Washington had 19.

Nebraska has still never beaten Washington games. Prior to Saturday's game, the two teams met during 1950-51 at Seattle and Huskies won.

Former Nebraska basketball standout Steve Erwin, who was graduated from NU in May with a degree in animal science, was a locker room visitor. Now married, Erwin is working in Norfolk for a livestock market doing country work and evaluating animals.

Wednesday night's guest, St. Mary's of Cabfornia, is a member of the West Coast Athletic Conference. The Gaels had a 14-12 overall record including a 7-7 league mark good for fourth place - which is exactly the same mark that Nebraska had last year. Coached by Frank LaPorte, St. Mary's has

Ralph "The Rocket" Walker. The 6-3 senior forward averaged 17.1 points-per-game last season. The only other returning starter is 6-3 junior guard Rick Bernard, who averaged 10.3

The University of Illinois, which nipped Nebraska, 60-58, in NU's season opener, is now 5-0. The Illini defeated New Mexico, 67-66, in overtime at Champaign. Nebraska apparently lost to a potent squad.

Nastase, turning on his talent instead of his temper, Sunday defeated Sweden's Bjorn Borg 6-2, 6-2, 6-1 to win the $130,000 Masters Tennis Tournament for the fourth time in six years.

The mercurial Romanian, whose volcanic temper has won him more headlines than his tennis this year, swept Borg off his home court in just five minutes over one hour with a display of vintage tennis.

Borg, who at 19 is 10 years Nastase's junior, had a nightmare final. Nastase took control from the start on the Royal Tennis Hall's slow synthetic surface and only allowed Borg one chance to break his service.

Nastase collected $40,000 on his third wedding anniversary which helped defray the cost of a $2,000 fur coat he bought for his wife, Dominique. "I had to win, you see," he said.

The Romanian defeated defending champion Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 6-0, 6-3, 6-4 Saturday to complete his record of reaching the final every year the tournament has been played.

This year his appearance in the final completed a memorable metamorphosis from villain to hero after being disqualified in his opening match of the round-robin tournament because of his temper tantrums while playing Arthur Ashe. Nastase, whose range of

All-American Caliber By MARK GORDON Star Sports Writer

Nebraska's Fort Shows

Notes and quotes after Nebraska's 75-63 loss to Washington Saturday night at the NU

At the risk of antagonizing this newspaper's 'pen pals," let's just say that the boos and "Fire Cip" chants that emerged from the stands with four minutes left were unwarranted.

When Cipriano took Fort out of the game due to defensive lapses, it was apparent that the Chicago senior was not having one of his better games. He hit on just six of 14 field goal attempts.

But what makes Jerry Fort a bona fide all-American is not only his ability to rebound after a sub-par effort, but the way he conducts himself in answering questions afterwards.

He didn't make any excuses. He didn't curse writers for asking him questions, which he obviously knew were coming.

That's showing class. It's something Jerry Fort has displayed since he arrived at Nebraska. He treats writers with respect whether the Huskers lose by 20 or win by 20.

"I didn't play a very good defensive game." Fort said. "But Washington's probably the best team we'll play. Ramsey's one of the top guards in the country. They've got nice depth - their substitutes are as good as their starters."

Jerry Fort represents everything positive about Nebraska basketball. It's unfortunate a minority of the 7,500 crowd didn't applaud him for his efforts, rather than using his exit as a chance to jeer Cipriano.

Nebraska's 6-6 center Larry Cox noted that Washington's height posed more problems than the Huskies' physical efforts.

'We weren't anticipating a real physical game because they're so tall," said the Denver native. "They gave us trouble with their height. They hit the boards pretty good.

'It's tough to handle them and I had to worry about helping the others out," said Cox, who grabbed three rebounds, but was not assessed any

One bright point for Nebraska was turnovers. The Huskers, who have not been plagued by miscues this season, committed just 13 while Washington had 19.

Nebraska has still never beaten Washington in basketball. The Huskies have won all six series games. Prior to Saturday's game, the two teams met during 1950-51 at Seattle and Huskies won, 54-49 and 71-53.

Former Nebraska basketball standout Steve Erwin, who was graduated from NU in May with a degree in animal science, was a locker room visitor. Now married, Erwin is working in Norfolk for a livestock market doing country work and evaluating animals.

Wednesday night's guest, St. Mary's of California, is a member of the West Coast Athletic Conference. The Gaels had a 14-12 overall record including a 7-7 league mark good for fourth place - which is exactly the same mark that Nebraska had last year.

Coached by Frank LaPorte, St. Mary's has Ralph "The Rocket" Walker. The 6-3 senior forward averaged 17.1 points-per-game last season. The only other returning starter is 6-3 junior guard Rick Bernard, who averaged 10.3

The University of Illinois, which nipped Nebraska, 60-58, in NU's season opener, is now 5-0. The Illini defeated New Mexico, 67-66, in overtime at Champaign. Nebraska apparently lost to a potent squad.

Pro Basketball Kuhn Announces Rule Change

BASEBALL

Major league baseball teams now are permitted to sign collegians between the end of their junior and start of their senior years, baseball Commissioner Bowle Kuhn announced.

The old rule kept teams from signing a collegian until after his senior year unless he dropped out of school. Southern California coach Rod Dedeaux was on the committee recommending the change.

A total of nearly 43 million fans — the largest number since 1951 — attended professional baseball games in 1975. A total of 42,984,376 saw games, including 584,531 who saw championship palyoff games and the World Series.

FOOTBALL

Quarterback Len Dawson of the Kansas City Chiefs suffered a cracked bone in his right thumb in the Chiefs' 28-20 loss to the San Diego Chargers. The injury led to speculation that the 40year-old Dawson might miss the team's remaining two NFL

OTHER SPORTS

Iowa State dominated its own tournament as the Cyclones captured eight of ten matches in the Iowa State Invitational Wrestling Meet. Other schools competing were Winona, Minn., Colorado, Nebraska, Kent State, Missouri and Drake.

Gary Tuttle of the Beverly Hills (Calif.) Striders, won the 28th annual Western Hemisphere Marathon in 2:17:26. Pat Bradley notched three birdies in the last four holes to win the Colgate Far East Women's Golf Championship. The victory has won her a place in the field for next weeks' $63,000 Colgate Triple Crown golf tournament at Palm Springs. John Stracey of Great Britain stopped defending champion Jose Napoles in the sixth round and won the World Boxing

BASEBALL

Major league baseball teams now are permitted to sign collegians between the end of their junior and start of their senior years, baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced.

The old rule kept teams from signing a collegian until after his senior year unless he dropped out of school. Southern California coach Rod Dedeaux was on the committee recommending the change.

A total of nearly 43 million fans — the largest number since 1951 — attended professional baseball games in 1975. A total of 42,984,376 saw games, including 584,531 who saw championship palyoff games and the World Series.

FOOTBALL

Quarterback Len Dawson of the Kansas City Chiefs suffered a cracked bone in his right thumb in the Chiefs' 28-20 loss to the San Diego Chargers. The injury led to speculation that the 40year-old Dawson might miss the team's remaining two NFL

OTHER SPORTS

Iowa State dominated its own tournament as the Cyclones captured eight of ten matches in the Iowa State Invitational Wrestling Meet. Other schools competing were Winona, Minn., Colorado, Nebraska, Kent State, Missouri and Drake.

Gary Tuttle of the Beverly Hills (Calif.) Striders, won the 28th annual Western Hemisphere Marathon in 2:17:26.

Pat Bradley notched three birdies in the last four holes to win the Colgate Far East Women's Golf Championship. The victory has won her a place in the field for next weeks' $63,000 Colgate Triple Crown golf tournament at Palm Springs.

John Stracey of Great Britain stopped defending champion Jose Napoles in the sixth round and won the World Boxing Council welterweight title.

Unbeaten Duane Bobick will try to win his 33rd straight pro fight Friday when he makes his Madison Square Garden debut against Randy Neumann in a scheduled 10-round heavyweight

Mike Bandy won the bull riding go-round Sunday at the National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma City. Kay Proctor won the barrel racing go-rounds both Saturday and Sunday.

The Israel Football Federation canceled all lower division soccer matches for one month following the fatal stabbing of a player in a soccer riot.

Both those groups have been overlooking Alabama's basketball program, it seems, and both may be in for a shock. The Crimson Tide really does have a good basketball team and may be asserting itself in force this SEC season.

After beating a fine 19thranked Providence team 71-67 Saturday, C.M. Nobody gets excited about basketball until the football season is over." If Saturday's victory in

"Reggie will go in where it's thick," said Newton. "He's not afraid to mix it up."

Bob Cooper led a second half comeback by Providence when Douglas was forced to the bench with 14 21 to play. The Friars' forward scored four baskets during the Alabama center's absence and Providence cut a 13point deficit to five points.

After Douglas' return to the line-up, Providence guard Joe Hassett, who had been shut off by Alabama's T.R. Dunn, scored three straight baskets as the Friars closed to within two. 67-65, with 55 seconds remaiпипд.

But King scored his crucial free throws and guard Anthony Murray locked up the victory with a last second lay-up.

Tennessee, the coaches' choice in the SEC, is not conceding anything to anyone, however. But the Vols had to struggle Saturday to beat Michigan 82-81.

Ranked eighth nationally and paced by two New Yorkers, Bernard King and Ernie Grunfeld, Tennessee had a 10-point lead at the half, 45-35, and finished with a 61.8 shooting percentage from the field. King had 27 points for the night and Grunfeld and Mike Jackson 22 each.

Jackson helped to preserve the Vols' victory by hitting the first of a one-and-one foul bonus ith 12 seconds left. Michigan junior John Robinson, who helped his team cut the lead to only two points with 10 minutes remaining in the game, came back with a layup after Jackson's foul shot to bring the Wolverines within one point with four seconds left. Time ran out with Tennessee in posses-

Now that the summer heat is over, your Lincoln Electric System will be able to give you some relief from the heat of rising costs of energy. Effective the 1st of November through May 31st, winter rates for electricity are in effect.

How will this affect you?

The following chart shows the difference between summer and winter rates for residential customers under the rate structure which went into effect September 1, 1975. This chart gives several kilowatt-hour usage figures. You can match the chart to your personal usage by referring to your monthly statement that gives your actual kilowatthour use.

Monthly	Usage	Summer Rate	Winter Rate
250		$ 8.73	$ 8.73
500	KW	14.88	13.28
577	KW (Avg.	) 16.73	14.51
750	KW	20.88	16.98
1000	KW	26.88	20.48
1250	KW	32.51	23.48

(Note: These figures do not include sales tax.)

Both summer and winter rates are based on the cost of service. This service is less in the winter when high summer peaks are past and larger, more efficient generation units are providing all of our electric power.

Clash OAKLAND (UPI) - Operating on the AJ Davis theory that winning is everything, the Oakland Raiders take on the nice and loose Denver Broncos Monday night in the NFL nationally televised game as if their very lives depended on the outcome.

The Raiders, pro football's most successful team over the last 14 years but not necessarily the happiest because of continued failure to make it to the Super Bowl, wrapped up the AFC West title last Sunday with an overtime victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

They were 14 points favorites in that game and are picked by the same margin over the Broncos, who failed to challenge Oakland this year because of a series of injuries to key players. While the Raiders are 9-2, the Broncos are 5-6 and merely playing out the string.

Still, some of the Raiders' toughest games in the last three years have been against the John Ralston-led Broncos, and Monday night's game figures to continue the trend.

"Our whole season is geared to winning as many games as we can and going on to the Super Bowl." says Raiders' Coach John Madden, perfectly reflecting the club house line laid down by Davis, who is the managing general partner and the man who calls all the shots both on and off the field.

The Raiders must keep on winning this year, though, because the home site advantage in post-season games goes to the teams with the best wonlost records, and over the years the Raiders have been the most successful team at home

Tigers, Astros Open HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) - Campbell, Tigers' general man-Detroit and Houston, last-place ager, "but we believe we are getclubs, have swung the first deal ting players who will help us

Tal Smith, the Astros' general manager, said, "We feel we have quiring veteran help and the Astros apparently building for added four top-grade pitchers who can help our ballclub in three areas-pitching, catching In the seven-player transaction announced Saturday, first and the outfield."

Detroit finished last in the American League East, 371/2 games back, while Houston was last in the National League West, 431/2 games back. It was the second stright year that the Tigers finished in the cellar. Meantime, some 1,400 members of organized baseball gathered for the week-long meetings which officially open Monday. erts, 24, the Tigers' regular right Several key issues face baseball fielder last season; reserve brass, including settlement of the San Francisco and Chicago White Sox franchise situations.

Either of these clubs could "We hate to give up young wind up in Seattle, which has a players like we have," said Jim new domed stadium and a multi-million dollar antitrust suit N. D. St. Wins pending against baseball if it doesn't land a big league franchise. The suit stems from the American League pullout from Seattle after only one season, 1969, and the transfer of the club to Milwaukee.

Bill Veeck has a Wednesday deadline to come up with an additional $1.2 million in his bid to purchase the AL White Sox from John Allyn. If Veeck fails to come through, Allyn may sell the team to a group headed by entertainer Danny Kaye, which would like to move the club to Seattle.

The sale of the NL Giants by Horace Stoneham also is expected this week. Two San Francisco groups are seeking the club. The San Francisco Bay Area has had trouble supporting both the Giants and the Oakland A's.

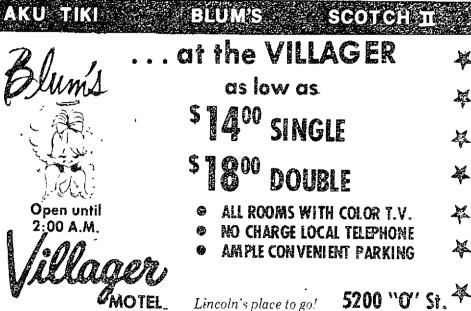

Contract negotiations between the players' association and the owners is another sticky issue on the agenda. The basic agreement between owners and players, which covers working conditions, expires Dec. 31. The benefit agreement, which includes pension funding, ends next March 31.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' group, says no progress has been made since negotiations began last June. In another matter on the Monday agenda, the American League will push for use of the designated hitter in the World Series, All-Star Game and exhibition games at American League parks. The AL has used the DH rule for three years, while the NL has been dead set against it.

There also is a proposal to make the league championship playoffs a best-of-seven series instead of the present best-of-five

Also scheduled Monday is the draft of unprotected minor league players. Three players, a record low, were chosen last year for the $25,000 price tag by major league clubs.

The Raiders, pro football's most successful team over the last 14 years but not necessarily the happiest because of continued failure to make it to the Super Bowl, wrapped up the AFC West title last Sunday with an overtime victory over the Atlanta Falcons

They were 14 points favorites in that game and are picked by the same margin over the Broncos, who failed to challenge Oakland this year because of a series of injuries to key players. While the Raiders are 9-2, the Broncos are 5-6 and merely playing out the string.

Still, some of the Raiders' toughest games in the last three years have been against the John Ralston-led Broncos, and Monday night's game figures to continue the trend.

"Our whole season is geared to winning as many games as we can and going on to the Super Bowl," says Raiders' Coach John Madden, perfectly reflecting the club house line laid down by Davis, who is the managing general partner and the man who calls all the shots both on and off the field.

The Raiders must keep on winning this year, though, because the home site advantage in post-season games goes to the teams with the best wonlost records, and over the years successful team at home

Either of these clubs could wind up in Seattle, which has a new domed stadium and a multi-million dollar antitrust suit ment between owners and play-

American League pullout from Seattle after only one season, 1969, and the transfer of the club to Milwaukee.

Bill Veeck has a Wednesday deadline to come up with an additional $1.2 million in his bid to purchase the AL White Sox from John Allyn. If Veeck fails to come through, Allyn may sell the team to a group headed by entertainer Danny Kaye, which would like to move the club to Seattle.

The sale of the NL Giants by Horace Stoneham also is expected this week. Two San Francisco groups are seeking the club. The San Francisco Bay Area has had trouble supporting both the Giants and the Oakland next March 31. Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' group, says no progress has been made since negotiations began last June. In another matter on the Monday agenda, the American League will push for use of the designated hitter in the World Series, All-Star Game and exhibition games at American League parks. The AL has used the DH rule for three years, while the NL has been dead set against it.

There also is a proposal to make the league championship playoffs a best-of-seven series instead of the present best-of-five.

Also scheduled Monday is the draft of unprotected minor league players. Three players, a record low, were chosen last year for the $25,000 price tag by major league clubs

Now that the summer heat is over, your Lincoln Electric System will be able to give you some relief from the heat of rising costs of energy. Effective the 1st of November through May 31st, winter rates for electricity are in effect.

How will this affect you?

The following chart shows the difference between summer and winter rates for residential customers under the rate structure which went into effect September 1, 1975. This chart gives several kilowatt-hour usage figures. You can match the chart to your personal usage by referring to your monthly statement that gives your actual kilowatthour use.

Monthly	Usage	Summer Rate	Winter Rate
250	KW	$ 8.73	$ 8.73
500	KW	14.88	13.28
577	KW (Avg.	16.73	14.51
750	KW	20.88	16.98
1000	KW	26.88	20.48
1250	KW	32.51	23.48

(Note: These figures do not include sales tax.)

Both summer and winter rates are based on the cost of service. This service is less in the winter when high summer peaks are past and larger, more efficient generation units are providing all of our electric power.

Zorinsky Said Not Swayed By GOP Man

Omaha (AP) — Rep John Y. McCollister, R-Neb, says he docs not believe a Republican party field man influenced Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky in his decision to switch his registration from Republican to Democrat

Zorinsky had been quoted as saying he decided to switch after a visit from a "high-ranking public official from Washington," who told him Sen Roman Hruska, R-Neb, wanted McCollister to succeed Hruska in

Charles Hagel, a McCollister aide, said the man was Ron Rice, a GOP field representative later fired for comments he made to Zorinsky McCollister said "I don't know whether it was Ron Rice the mayor is referring to If it is, he 15 not high ranking Ron Rice was a field man

The mayor announced he was switching parties Nov 19, the same day he said he would seek the Democratic nomination for the Senate seat held by Hruska Hruska is retiring and McCollister is a candidate for the Republican nomination to the Senate.

Computer Omaha Cars

Omaha (AP) - Officials say Omaha traffic will be moving more smoothly under a computerized traffic signal system

A 1974 public works bond issue approved by voters included. $1 million for the system Of licials said the first phase, downtown and North 30th Street, should be computerized by the end of next summer.

Public Works Director Terrance Pesek said there will be "a very noticeable advantage You'll see probably 20 to 25% fewer stops and a ten to 15% time saving. And there should be about a ten% saving of fuel"

Sensors for the computer have been installed near the 128 intersections in the first phase of the system

The sensors will tell the computer such things as the volume and speed of traffic. That will enable traffic signals to be adjusted automatically to keep traffic moving City traffic engineer Richard

Klatt said most of Omaha will be on the system in about five years About $500,000 will be needed in addition to the bond

The 85th annual performance of the Messiah by the University of Nebraska School of Music points out the need for a large performing arts center in Lincoln - not unlike the one proposed in the old Federal Building. Complaints undoubtedly have been made about the Coliseum's acoustics ever since the first Messiah was per-

Jenkins In Control

From the opening strains of the overture, conductor Earl Jenkins was in control - and he Sitting close to the orchestra had to be. It is quite easy for such a large ensemble to take flight, especially under such adverse conditions. Jenkins was quite animated in his movements, and it probably took every motion he could muster to keep the ensemble together.

According to what I think I heard, Jenkins elicited a fine tone from the ensemble and kept the balance among the soloists, orchestra and choir.

There wasn't much trouble hearing the four soloists since they sang into a microphone. Beethoven aptly said of While it easily accomplished American hope that if we didn't "I do wish the American peorespond to attacks upon us, ple and people of all nations maybe they wouldn't be made would come and listen to how if we acted like this language this world is getting torn wasn't being used, maybe it asunder," she said. "I have would stop being used. That's never heard such an exchange as not true . . . What we have said between China and Russia the is . . . we will respond to untrue day they each took the podium three times.

Miss Bailey was skeptical about the term Third World, Official Says U.S. Aid used to describe developing nations of Africa, Asia and Latin America.

Praising the Moynihan style,

Miss Bailey said, "I think he does speak from the heart. I think the greatest accomplishment that will happen there is to finally get men to sort of get rid

If the world is going to be split up, she said, "We're going to end up with 15 before this meeting adjourns ... there's the first world and the second world . . . we're talking about a fourth one, and all of a sudden, here's God's whole earth split up in pieces like a big pie.

'How can you keep slicing off of it? If you eat up the whole pie, and all of us take different slices, you're going to end up with an empty tin pan there.

Controversy over Moynihan's style surfaced in November after the General Assembly overrode Western opposition to a resolution equating Zionism with racism. Amid reports that he considered resigning because of lack of White House support, Moynihan met President Ford and returned saying he was encouraged to continue speaking

The former Harvard professor was asked on "Issues and Answers" what the United States could do about reported Soviet infiltration into Africa, a new issue he has recently raised.

What the United States ought not to do — and we are not doing - is to remain silent about it," Moynihan replied.

Communist Rearrested By Police

MADRID, Spain (AP) -Police rearrested Communist labor leader Marcelino Camacho, freed from prison only one week ago, and clubbed scores of others into vans Sunday in a sudden crackdown on opposition to Spain's new regime. Officials said 100 persons were arrested, but opposition sources said more than 300 were seized.

The massive show of police power, the biggest in years, undercut new King Juan Carlos' attempt at liberalization and his pardon order freeing Camacho and a few others serving sentences for political offenses.

The 57-year-old labor organizer was picked up by police near his home as he went to buy a Sunday newspaper. His wife and lawyer were refused permission to see him.

Within minutes of Camacho's arrest, riot police, swinging at will from foot and horseback and with jeep sirens screaming, began seizing anyone considered suspicious within a half-mile radius of Madrid's Carabanchel Prison where the illegal Communist party had called a demonstration to demand amnesty for the rest of Spain's estimated 2,000 political prisoners. The demonstration never got off the ground.

Camacho was charged with 'giving orders' and mobilizing NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Police fired smoke grenades, hit people in cafes, halted taxis and buses and warned newsmen away from the prison area.
